FAMILY PROMISE OF SHENANDOAH COUNTY

A note from our Executive Director

In rural communities such as ours, collaboration between non-profits is not just important; it is essential. By working together, we can combine limited resources, avoid duplicating services, and reach more neighbors in need. This kind of partnership also builds trust, supports shared problem-solving, and helps create lasting solutions for those experiencing housing insecurity.

Such is the case in our partnership with the Shenandoah Alliance for Shelter. We are grateful that together we are helping families in Shenandoah County navigate moments of uncertainty. The Alliance's long-standing commitment to preventing homelessness complements our work, and together we can better support our neighbors facing housing challenges.

Our relationship strengthens the care we provide to families by connecting them to trusted support and ensuring that each agency's resources are used wisely and effectively. In a rural area where resources can be limited, working side by side lets us respond more quickly and personally to those we serve.

Partnerships like this remind us that lasting impact occurs when agencies work together. We are thankful for the Shenandoah Alliance for Shelter and appreciate their willingness to work with Family Promise of Shenandoah County. Together we are helping families find stability, dignity, and a path forward.

Wishing you peace,

Kelly

Case Manager's Corner

Collaboration: the situation of two or more people working together to create or achieve the same thing.

The last few weeks have been all about collaboration. Case Management with two of our families has focused on working towards finding stable housing. One family is staying in shelter with us, while the other is participating in shelter diversion services.

Together, the Shenandoah Alliance for Shelter, Centralized Housing Intake, the landlord, Family Promise, and—most importantly—the families themselves are working toward the shared goal of permanent, stable housing.

When individuals, organizations, and community partners come together to achieve the same goal, incredible things can happen. And what better goal is there than helping families find a place to call home? After all, every child deserves a home.

Collaboration is a beautiful thing.

~ Holly

Dad jokes are a staple of fatherhood. Fathers are also there to teach and guide their children. They provide for their families and show their children hard work pays off. They offer love, guidance and encouragement and are a role model for their children. Here are a few fun punnies we found for a good giggle on Father's Day.

I took my dad camping for Father's Day. It was in tents.

My dad used to be addicted to the hokey pokey. But then he turned himself around.

I was going to tell my dad a pizza joke for Father's Day. But I decided it was too cheesy.

You ever wonder when a joke becomes a dad joke? When the punchline is apparent.

STAFF SPOTLIGHT

NEW WEBSITE

Same web address, new look!

<https://www.shenandoahfamilypromise.org/>

If you haven't been to our website in a while, we encourage you to take a quick peek and see what's new.

The new website still has everything you love from our previous webpage like our staff, newsletters and the donation option, but now you can dive deep into all things Family Promise of Shenandoah County. You can now read about our history dating back to the beginnings of National Family Promise. All of our program information and our mission and vision has its own space. There is a sponsorship and partner page so you can see who else supports Family Promise. Our social media links will take you right to our Facebook and Instagram pages. If you aren't following us on socials, please consider doing so and help grow our presence so we can reach more folks. Finally, you'll find our NEW 2025 annual report along with the past four years under the financials tab.

New this year, is a registration link for our upcoming golf tournament on July 31st at Bryce Resort on our home page. More information on the Golf Tournament, including prices and registration, is also on the next page of this newsletter.
